How well do you hear?

More than 8 million people in the UK suffer from hearing loss; the symptoms of which can seriously affect their enjoyment of life and, in an increasingly noisy world, it's predicted we'll see ever larger numbers of people experiencing these effects and at a younger age. Hearing loss can be caused by many things: illness, medication, a buildup of ear wax; but in most cases hearing loss is simply part of getting older as the sensory hair cells in our ears fall prey to wear and tear. 'More than 50% of people over the age of 60 are living with a hearing loss and because the symptoms develop so gradually many people struggle for years with it unchecked' says Karen Shepherd, Professional Services Manager at David Ormerod Hearing Centres.

In fact it's often a friend or family member who first notices the symptoms of hearing loss. 'The most commonly reported symptoms are that people have the television too loud for others in the room or constantly ask people to repeat themselves – untreated hearing loss can often be a source of frustration for friends and family.'

But the person most affected is the one with the loss; for them it can really affect their quality of life. Imagine you're in a noisy restaurant struggling to hear the conversation. You have three options; take a guess at something you don't hear and risk the embarrassment of getting it wrong; ask people to repeat themselves and risk them getting frustrated; or simply withdraw from the conversation. Sadly for many the third option is easiest; resulting in otherwise outgoing, lively people avoiding social situations and becoming withdrawn.

Here are some tips on how to enjoy better hearing:

Prevention is better than cure

Hearing loss can be also be caused by exposure to excessive levels of noise. Minimise the risk to your hearing by avoiding noisy environments, keep the volume down on music and, if work or hobbies mean that you're regularly exposed to loud noise, protect your ears. A wide range of hearing protection products is available from David Ormerod Hearing Centres.

Check it out

If you suspect you're not hearing as well as you could be then get your hearing tested. A simple, free hearing check at David Ormerod Hearing Centres will help put your mind at rest. If you're over 60 you should be attending a hearing check every 2 years.

Seek a solution

Whilst hearing aids won't restore normal hearing, they can make a huge difference and allow people to take a more active part in everyday life. Today's digital hearing aids are smaller and more discreet than ever before and are packed full of enhanced features to help make sure you never miss a word.

Hearing aids from just £345

David Ormerod Hearing Centres' hearing aid range is more discreet and gives even clearer, more natural sound. Hearing tests, demonstrations and impartial advice are all free and prices start at just £345.

Hello!

Welcome to Radio Clatterbridge 1386AM.

We are a hospital community radio station broadcasting exclusive programmes to Clatterbridge Health Park, Wirral.

A registered charity, we have been providing entertainment, news and information to our listeners since 1951.

Requests and mentions are at the centre of everything we do. We aim to brighten up your day - whether you're a patient, visitor or worker!

How to listen to Radio Clatterbridge

Radio Clatterbridge broadcasts on 1386AM (Medium Wave). Anyone within Clatterbridge Health Park can hear the station.

Patients are loaned special radios for the duration of their stay which are automatically tuned to Radio Clatterbridge. They are then deep-cleaned and used again. Patients, visitors and staff with their own radios can tune in to Radio Clatterbridge by going to 1386 on the AM or MW band within Clatterbridge Health Park.

Patients at Clatterbridge Cancer Centre can also receive our programmes through their bedside televisions. You will find us under "Radio" on the home screen. Just click on our logo to listen. Alternatively, just press button number 1 to switch between TV and radio.

ARK Contemporary Designs

by
Angela Ruth Kennedy

Beautifully Handcrafted Jewellery

Hi I'm Ange, I'm a jewellery designer-maker living in Little Sutton. I have my own fully equipped workshop and work in sterling silver, all carats and colour of gold and use precious and semi-precious stones. I love contemporary styles and keep my designs simple, clean and understated. I take on commissions and work with clients so together we produce unique and beautiful jewellery.

Do you have any old jewellery that you just don't wear anymore? Then don't cash it in have it made into something new! I can recycle your old silver and gold and make your old sentimental pieces wearable again. I can even repair broken jewellery.

I run silver jewellery making workshops at various venues in Cheshire and I can travel to other venues with all the necessary equipment to run corporate events, hen parties etc. I also run tuition at my workshop for one or two people at a time so they can develop their skills, or make a gift for a loved one, or couples can even come along and make their own wedding rings.

1971 saw five enthusiasts meet in Manchester's Daresbury Pub to discuss how to preserve the traditions and history of the inland waterways.

A voluntary society was formed to further their aims which became over time the Boat Museum Society. A home was needed and the then Borough of Ellesmere Port and Neston was contacted about a lease of Ellesmere Port canal dock.

After much discussion the first party of volunteers arrived on site in early December 1974. Their first job was to make the buildings secure and to restore the Toll House.

The first phase of the Museum opened in 1976 and throughout the 1970s work continued on site with the support of the council. In 1979 the Museum was honoured with a visit from the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh. Over the years the museum continued to grow with many areas restored including the popular Porters Row cottages.

Steam engines which powered the hydraulic cranes in the Island Warehouse were restored by a dedicated volunteer and these can still be seen regularly in steam. An exhibition in the Island Warehouse opened in 1982 and further displays around the site followed. The restored houses in Porters Row were furnished to reflect different periods in time and are a popular feature of the Museum.

In 2000 a new chapter opened for the Museum with The Waterways Trust now operating the museum. Since 2000 new exhibitions, and a café and visitor centre have opened. The National Waterways Museum continues to develop with the partnership of The Waterways Trust, The Boat Museum Society, volunteers and many others working together to ensure its continued success.

The events programme at the museum improves each year and for 2012, as well as the ever popular Easter Boat Gathering and the return of the Beer Festival in October, the museum played host to historical reneactors in May and crafts and cars in June. October's Beer Festival, organised in conjunction with Titanic Brewery, is a chance to real ale fans to try some of the finest craft beers in the museum's unique surroundings.

Marketing Manager Oliver Briscoe said: "We're excited about our programme for this year, there is really something for everyone.

"The museum itself is a unique site which is well worth a visit but coming to see us on one of our special event days just gives you something extra."

The National Waterways Museum, at Ellesmere Port, is home to the national collection of historic working boats, some of which visitors can board to explore and find out how the working boat people used to live. The Museum also has a trip boat, hands-on exhibits, films, touch-screen displays, stables, a blacksmith, docks, pump houses, workers cottages and gardens, an archive, a soft play area, Museum shop and cafe.
